

Trichomonas foetus vaccine immunogenicity trial.

Schnackel, J. A. ; Wallace, B. L. ; Kvasnicka, W. G. ; Hanks, D. R. ; Hall, M. R.

Agri-Practice Volume: 10 Issue: 6 Pages: 11-14 Published: 1990

Abstract

Based on an experimental vaccine developed by Australian researchers, a project was initiated to develop a safe and effective trichomoniasis vaccine. An immunogenicity trial using 8 bulls experimentally infected with T. foetus and 125 heifers indicated that the new product causes little or no injection site or systemic reactions and was effective in preventing or greatly reducing T. foetus infection following challenge. It stimulates a significant antibody response.